

PUBLIC HEALTH

Public health agencies must constantly respond to an ever-changing world. We get that.

The last two years have brought unprecedented challenges to public health agencies and the pandemic has stretched your agencies in ways that were previously thought of as only remote possibilities. So, now what? More is being asked of state and local health departments and their community-based partners than ever before.

COVID-19 response and recovery, public health accreditation, and an array of other reforms are posing a variety of unique and shared challenges at state and local health departments, even as you lead efforts to improve the social determinants of health and combat a myriad of public health threats.

HMA has the public health experts to help state and local health departments thrive amid the rapid change you face.
